Healy, Sean
Reform UK

Sean grew up on a council estate and attended his local comprehensive school. He gained a place at the University of Wales where he did his degree. He lives in Bearpark and has a career in retail and customer services for a local company. Sean firmly believes it is time for real change in Durham. He believes the council tax payers do not get value for money with far too much being spent on woke projects instead of much needed public services.

VOTE REFORM UK | THURSDAY 1ST MAY

We will instruct the Council's legal department to do everything legally possible to resist the Labour Government's imposition of ever more 'asylum seekers' on us.

Cut wasteful and unecessary spending to end the cycle of ever increasing Council tax and failing services. Ensure rate payers money is spent on local people.

Work with the Police to restore law and order to our streets and implement a clampdown on all crime and antisocial behaviour .
